SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

Third Day of the Mrs. Wilkinson-Elliott Libel Suit.

Mrs. Elliott severely cross-examined for half a boy—Her Testimony Stands Unshaken.

The Swears that Mrs. Wilkinson has Caused All Her Trouble, and Alienated the Affections of Her Husband.

Mrs. Wilkinson Described by the Neighbors as "Elliott's Wife—man."

The Plaintiff Insists on Knowing what "Document" Witness Furnished Defense, and is Answered, a Photograph and Some Medicine Bottles.

Defendant Offers to Exhibit the Indictment, and Prove the Character of the Contents of the Bottles Found in Plaintiff's Bedroom, and the Peculiar Disease Such Medicine Cures.

Plaintiff Calls Frantically on the Court to Prevent this Proof Going to the Jury—Testimony Ruled Out on Technical Grounds.

Defendant Undertakes to Prove by a Police Officer that Plaintiff's Son Called Her a Coward,  Etc.—Why the Boy was Locked Out—A Man in a Woman's Bedroom.

Mrs. Wilkinson's Counsel Insist that Evidence of Specific Acts of Elicit Intercourse are not Admissible to Prove Her Want of Character.

The Evidence Ruled Out, but Defendant Allowed to Prove what is Expected to Prove.

Fodder not Finally Found on Sale in Hardware Stores—Visitors were Not Visited clandestinely by Miscellaneous Sales at Midnight.

A Police Officer Saw Mrs. Wilkinson Come Down Stairs with Numerous Nocturnal Visitors, and Embrace and Kiss Them at Parting.

He Dispersed One Midnight Meeting of Prostituted Duration, and Ordered the Lighting Lobbies to Move On.

The Police Regard the Promise of Plaintiff as "Despicable" but Not "Dishonest." Therefore They have "Pulled It."

Trial Postponed until Friday, when New Evidence will be Introduced—Character may be Exposed.

Personal Sketches.

At six o'clock yesterday morning the court was opened with a large audience of spectators, drawn from all walks of life, to witness the new trials which were to be held before the Hon. W. H. Coffey, in charge of the most notorious charges of wilful homicide, which had been brought against Mr. George Tracy and Walter Elliott. It was the second day of the trial, and the public was very interested in the result.

The case was very interesting, and the trial was presented to the public as the trial of a man who had been accused of the most heinous of crimes, for harboring ghosts of the dead.

It was a rare trial, and it was enough to interest the public to have a perfect design for the trial. The trial was to be held at the time of the new moon, and certainly there was enough to interest the public to have a good and exciting audience.
